

Intent: To an adventure story

At the moment, many people are being described as heroes. I would like you to write a story which shows someone as a hero who saves someone or even the world from a foe (remember goodies and baddies). Your hero could be one from a film or book that you have read and could be a new adventure for them. They could also be someone from real life who has carried out a heroic task. Or if you are feeling very creative, you could create your own hero and villain/monster and write a story where your hero overcomes or defeats the monster.

Remember to use your powerful and descriptive vocabulary. See if you can include any of the words from Monday's list. Also remember to vary your sentence starters.

Plan:

Hero

Villain

What has the villain done?

What has happened after the villain's actions?

How does the hero overcome the villain?

How does everyone reward or thank the villain?

Remember that a story has:

- a beginning where the characters and setting are introduced
- a build up where the problem is introduced
- the problem - the juicy part of the story where all of the action takes place
- the resolution - where the problem is solved
- an ending where all the loose ends are tied up and people have learned something.

If you need some hints re-read a book about a hero that you have enjoyed or watch a film about a hero.

Have fun whilst you are doing this.